

On 20th October we supported a charity fashion show, organised by the Lions Club in Navan, Co. Meath, in aid of the Meath Woman's Refuge, with the support of Ribbon Rouge who provided the ladies clothes.

It was held in the main conference hall of the 4 * Knightsbrook Golf & Spa Resort in Trim, Co. Meath and the night was advertised as a 'Pre-Christmas Launch for the Autumn/Winter '09 collection.

The room was exceptionally large, so our objective was to focus on a few key areas, so that the impact could be seen & felt from every angles - always something to look at! We decorated the inside of the hall with a 9.5 foot tree in red & gold, with a number of fashion 'articles' well placed in the tree to personalise it to a fashion event. We had two double garlands lavishly decorated hanging over the two very large double entrance doors.

As you entered the room you could see, in the far corner, a large wreath and 2 small wreaths hanging on the walls - all decorated in a different way to highlight the different effects that can be achieved.

The 3.5 metre pyramid tree swamped in thousands of lights stood in the corner topped with a large blue star.

The entrance onto the runway was decorated with 2 x spiral topiaries - one on either side of the curtain. We placed other topiaries strategically along the runway. There were over 350 people in attendance and the main compere for the evening was Triona McCarthy who is the Sunday Independent Fashion beauty editor - recently appointed the head of the "Living" section of The Sunday Indo.
